“ Chels, you mean the world to me. Anyone the met you always used similar words: loving, bighearted, and optimistic. You were the brightest light I've ever known. You were the best big sister I could ever all for. I will miss your hugs that squeezed the breath out of me. God gained the most special angel. I love you now, then, and forever. Always your Ham.

“ Chelsea it saddens me to say the good die young. You and Haley were me and Lauren's first best friends, I will never forget the day I first met yall both. You were a free spirit, a pure soul. Haley, Mr. Jason, and Ms. Shelia.. may you find comfort in knowing Chelsea is with a God who has healed her pain, washed away her sins, and restored her soul to be with him in the Almighty kingdom. may you find peace in knowing he makes no mistakes in his mercy and grace. I know Chelsea has made her way home to him and yall will one day meet again. RIP Chelsea. You will forever be missed and never forgotten. This picture was on a Thanksgiving i got to spend with yalls family, my life was so torn apart that year but I felt so much love and peace being with yall that year. I will never forget it. Love ya big sis!!! ♥

“ Chelsea and I were in the woman's home program together at heartland. This photo was the last time I hugged Chelsea, it was the day of my graduation. My heart is broken that she is gone and She is already missed so much. She lit up the room when she walked in it, always wanted to help anyone with anything. Her smile was beautiful! I'm grateful I was able to know her. ~ Ashley Harrub

“ Oh Chels.. i have so many wonderful memories of us. From when you were a little girl until you became a beautiful young lady. You had the biggest heart of anyone I've ever known. I miss you so much already. Our lives and hearts will never be the same without you in our lives. Fly high baby girl. God gained a precious angel! And i have no doubt that you will be watching over us all! I love you so very much
